Railway Workers Decide To Continue on Strike

Action of Railroad Companies in Reserving Right To Take Back Only Strikers Whom They Choose To Reinstate Results In Half Million Railway Workers Continuing on Strike—Government Must Stop Attacks on Trade Unions Declares Spokesman For Trades Union Council.

London, May 13.—Britain's industrial strike continues.

Half a million railway workers today decided to continue on strike. This decision was taken after the railroad companies had issued a joint statement that employees who struck had broken their contracts and they would be taken back only on conditions which would make another general strike improbable, and the railroads would reserve the right to take back only those whom they choose to reinstate.

"The continuance of the railroad strike only adds to a serious situation which is rapidly developing. Other employers are reported to be adopting measures similar to those announced by the railroad companies.

Many strikers are declining to return to work, and a new deadlock, this one between capital and labor, rather than between labor and the government, threatens.

The strike of a million coal miners remains effective.

The Trades Union Council held a long session and reviewed the entire situation and issued a statement announcing that they are prepared to "offer stubborn resistance" unless all strikers are permitted to return to their work.

The order issued for the continuance of the railroad strike was as follows:

"In view of differences concerning reinstatement, we join in a call upon all railwaymen to continue on strike until we receive satisfactory assurances.

E. Bromley, for the Locomotive Engineers.
C. T. Cramp, for the National Railway Union.
A. G. Walkden, for the Clerks' Union."

Railroads Issue Statement.
The railroads issued the following statement:

"The companies feel compelled to make these reservations in the interest of the public and to safeguard the future peace and discipline on the railways.

"Rumors that the companies are refusing to take back men except at wage reductions are absolutely incorrect."

"All men who can be employed immediately are being accepted for duty and others will be accepted as soon as possible, subject to two conditions: First, every man who left his work without notice has broken his contract of service and the companies insist that they must reserve any rights they possess in the matter; secondly, a number of men in positions of trust have gone on strike and others have been guilty of acts of intimidation and violence. The companies propose to examine these cases individually and make such decisions as they see fit regarding them."

Government Must Stop Attacks.
The National Union of Railwaymen's action in deciding to remain on strike was taken at the same time that a statement of serious portent was being issued from the Trades Union Council.

"Some employers are attempting to enforce humiliating terms as conditions of the employers' returning to work," said the spokesman of the Trades Union Council.

"The General Council called off the general strike in confidence that the strike was taken at the same time that a statement of serious portent was being issued from the Trades Union Council."

American Legion Poppy Day May 29

Proceeds Will Be Used For Welfare Work in Kingston—Women of Legion Auxiliary Will Conduct Sale.

The annual American Legion Poppy Day will be held in Kingston on Saturday, May 29. As has been the custom since the war, the American Legion Auxiliary, comprised of mothers, wives and sisters of ex-servicemen, will sell poppies in memoriam—lest we forget them that sleep in Flanders Fields, where poppies grow.

The proceeds of Poppy Day sales have been used in years gone by to purchase and maintain the Veterans' Mountain Camp, an American Legion camp for disabled servicemen at Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks. Happily, that institution is now supported from different sources, and the proceeds of this year's Poppy Day will be devoted exclusively to welfare work, the greater part of it being disbursed in Kingston.

Both Kingston Post of the American Legion and its Auxiliary have done a great deal of important welfare work in years past but have been hampered somewhat by lack of funds. Some cases, where three or four children are in the family of a war-disabled father, unable to get government aid, require a great deal of money, sometimes more money than the Legion can afford. The need for such work, because of the expiration of the period in which disability can be presumed to be due to war service thus entitling veterans to government compensation, is continually increasing. The proceeds of this year's poppy sale will enable the American Legion organization to better meet the demands made upon it.

Poppy Day will be in charge of Mrs. Grace DuBois, commander of the American Legion Auxiliary, and every member of the Auxiliary will be a member of the Poppy Day sales force. The poppy girls will wear an article of apparel that will readily distinguish them as authorized agents of the American Legion Auxiliary. Members are requested to get in touch with Mrs. DuBois to arrange for this badge of honor.

Trading Still Light.

London, May 13.—Trading on the stock market was still light today, despite the ending of the general strike. Most stocks opened weaker, particularly rails and industrials, indicating the financial belief that a period of further trade depression may be expected.

Paderewski Improved.

New York, May 13.—News of the revolt in Poland is being kept from Ignace Paderewski, pianist, and former premier of Poland, who is ill here from an attack of grip. His condition was described today as improved.

No Break in Coal Output.

Informal steps are being taken to adjust the coal dispute on the basis of Sir Herbert Samuel's memorandum, but there appears no immediate chance of breaking the deadlock and the resumption of mining.

The government broadcast a statement today declaring that it had no power to compel employers to take back all of the men who had struck, but asking that adjustments be made in the spirit of cooperation and conciliation.

The failure of full resumption of the essential services left the Hyde Park Milk Depot and the Meat Station at Smithfield Market continuing in full blast. No serious food shortage has as yet developed.

The executive committee of the Miners' Federation was in session today and completed a report for presentation to the delegate conference to meet tomorrow.

Three Men Arrested.

The police continued making arrests in widely scattered sections of the city today under their emergency powers. It is estimated that more than two hundred persons have been arrested as the result of disorders last night and today. No serious disorders were reported.

Why Grade A Milk Should Be Used

Reasons Clearly Given by Mr. Schoonmaker in Reply to a Letter of Inquiry—Why the T. B. Examination If Pasteurizing Works?

Crescent Farms, Stone Ridge, N. Y., May 3. Editor, The Freeman:

A few days ago I received a letter from a citizen of Kingston asking me to give my reasons for producing Grade A Raw milk instead of Grade B pasteurized.

There have been quite a number of articles on pasteurized milk in the press of late and seemingly some have lost sight of many of the good qualities of Grade A Raw milk. Therefore, I have asked you to print the above mentioned letter, which is as follows:

Crescent Farms, Stone Ridge, N. Y., May 12.

Dear Madam:

Your letter of the 10th, at hand, asking me to give reasons why I choose to produce Grade A Raw milk instead of Grade B pasteurized. The following are my reasons:

First, I believe Grade A Raw milk is the coming milk in Kingston. My reasons for so thinking are the fact that the majority of people in the city of Kingston are using Raw milk at present and are satisfied with Raw milk. Then both the Ulster County Medical Society and the Academy of Medicine in Kingston both voted for Certified Grade A Raw milk and pasteurized till the time came, when Kingston could be supplied by Certified Grade A Raw milk.

I believe no one is more interested in knowing the needs and conditions better in the city of Kingston than our own physicians.

Second, The very fact that New York State together with many other states are spending millions of dollars yearly for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis is enough proof that they are working toward Grade A Raw milk. If our state officials considered pasteurized milk absolutely safe it would seem useless to appropriate three and one-half millions of dollars this year to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

Third, Grade A Raw milk requires a rigid farm and dairy inspection, a tuberculin test of the herd producing the milk and only a 60,000 bacteria count is allowed. Grade B pasteurized milk requires a much less rigid farm and dairy inspection and 100,000 bacteria count is allowed.

Practically the only disease in milk coming direct from the cow is tuberculosis. This is eradicated by the tuberculin test. All other diseases enter the milk after or during milking. This can, should be and is being avoided on the Crescent Farms. It therefore seems useless to me to pasteurize milk if one can produce and properly handle Grade A Raw milk from tuberculin tested cows.

Last, but not least, I have the utmost faith in the Board of Health and physicians in the city of Kingston and feel sure they will make no mistake in the choosing of the proper grades of milk to be sold in this city.

Respectfully yours,

CRESCENT FARMS,
Percy G. Schoonmaker.

Kingston Product For Porto Rico

The Universal Road Machinery Company of this city has received an order from the Kelvin Engineering Company for a complete 10x15 crushing outfit to be shipped to Porto Rico. Last fall the local concern shipped a plant of this size and the users were so well satisfied that they have ordered the second one with a promise of two more later in the season.

Other recent shipments consist of a complete portable 10x15 crusher with bins for the New York State Highway Department which is now being erected at Kenosha Lake, Sullivan county, a 11x22 crusher for the Newburgh Crushed Stone Company of Newburgh. This makes the third plant sold to this party.

Two 63-inch roller type screens have been sold to the state highway department of Louisiana, two 26-inch roller screens to the Menanite Sand & Gravel Company of Menanite, N. J., a 10x15 crusher to the township of Newburgh, and a power crusher to the town of Middletown, Delaware county. This is the second power crusher sold to this town since a year.

Twelve railroads of concrete and maintained pipe for culverts have been sold in Ulster county and fourteen railroads in Dutchess and Columbia counties.

City Pays Tribute To Judge Parker

Ulster County Bar Association Act as Escort as Judge's Body Is Taken to Wiltwyck Cemetery—Masonic Services at the Grave.

With a simple committal service, followed by the ritual of the Masonic fraternity, the body of Judge Alton Brooks Parker was interred in the family plot in Wiltwyck Cemetery Wednesday afternoon following the arrival of the body from New York on the late afternoon train. The body was met at the train by a large number of former neighbors, friends and associates of deceased and escorted to the cemetery where the simple services were held. Members of the Ulster County Bar Association of which Judge Parker was a member assembled in a body and acted as an escort from the train to the cemetery.

As the funeral procession arrived at the entrance gates to Wiltwyck Cemetery a large delegation of members of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., met the procession and led the way through the cemetery to the Parker plot.

The honorary pall bearers were former Mayor John E. Kraft, Judge John G. Van Etten, Edward Coykendall, John D. Schoonmaker, Judge James A. Betts, Admiral Francis J. Higginson, Charles De la Vergne, F. J. R. Clark, Howard Chipp, Judge A. T. Clearwater, Judge G. D. R. Hasbrouck, James O. Winston, Dr. E. E. Norwood, Philip Elting of this city and Paul McEwen of West Park.

The Rev. Charles Mercer Hall of Bridgeport, Conn., Judge Parker's son-in-law, and former pastor of the Holy Cross Church of this city, was in charge of the services, assisted by the Rev. Richard S. Searing, pastor of the Church of the Ascension at West Park. At the conclusion of that portion of the ceremony, the Masonic ritual service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. P. B. Seelye, chaplain of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., of which Judge Parker was the oldest living past master of friends and neighbors who had gathered to pay their last respects to Judge Parker, the immediate members of the family were present. Grouped about the grave were Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Hall and son and daughter, Mary and Arthur McCausland, law partner of Judge Parker. Brigadier-General Ransom H. Gillette, personal representative of Governor Alfred E. Smith, was present at the services. The governor was unable to attend the services and designated Brigadier-General Gillette as his personal representative.

Services in New York.

Interment in this city was preceded by services at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, New York city, where the funeral services were conducted by the Right Rev. Ernest M. Stiles, Episcopal Bishop of Long Island.

The body was escorted by motorcycle and mounted policemen from the Ambassador Hotel, where Judge and Mrs. Parker lived, to the church. It was noon when the funeral party arrived and the avenue was thronged with lunch-hour crowds. Traffic was kept moving by a dozen patrolmen.

As the dark gray coffin, which was brought into the church Bishop Stiles walked down the center aisle to receive it. The choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and during the Episcopal service for the dead, which was conducted by Bishop Stiles, "Lead Kindly Light" was sung. The recessional was "Peace, Perfect Peace."

The pallbearers were Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes, John W. Davis, Albert B. Boardman, Delaney Nicol, Morgan J. O'Brien, Edwin Gould, James A. O'Gorman, Gordon Auchincloss, David Hunter Miller, Colonel Walter Scott, Arthur McCausland, John G. Milburn, Seyvorn B. Sharpe and Eugene G. Grace.

Delegations were present from the Sulgrave Institution, the New York County Lawyers' Association, the National Civil Federation, the New York State Bar Association, the Bar Association of the City of New York, the Lawyers' Club and the National Democratic Club.

The church was filled with floral offerings, including one from the court of appeals at Albany, over which Judge Parker once presided.

Judge Van Etten's Tribute.

At the opening of the Supreme court on Tuesday, Judge John G. Van Etten addressed the court as follows:

May it please the court:

It is with profound sorrow that I arise to address the Supreme court of this state upon the receipt of the news that Judge Alton B. Parker, the most distinguished member of this bar, an eminent jurist and the most illustrious citizen of the county of Ulster, has passed to The Great Beyond.

Early in life he came from Cortland county to Ulster county, and he considered Ulster county as his home.

As a very young man he entered the law office of Schoonmaker & Harborth and was afterwards admitted to the bar. He began the practice of his profession in his court house and in this room. He was indefatigable in his labors, a hard student, and in very short time he won the distinction of being one of the brilliant and most prominent young lawyers at this bar.

As a very young man, in 1871, he was elected as the surrogate of Ulster county.

Watch Car Light To Avoid Arrest

Motor Bureau Inspectors Together With Local Police Rounded Up 18 Automobiles With Improper Headlights or Without Driving License.

A drive to round up violators of the automobile headlight law was staged by Motor Vehicle Inspectors assisted by Officers Rodell and Fout of the local police department Wednesday night which resulted in nearly five hundred automobiles being stopped and questioned; eighteen arrests made; forty green tags issued which required proper regulation of lights within ten days, and the cancellation of a large number of certificates that had been issued to auto owners last year.

All of the eighteen placed under arrest were arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court this morning.

Sass Fined $10.

Paul Sass of 13 East Pierpont street was arrested for operating his car without a license. He said it was true and that he had none. He had failed in taking a chauffeur's test last week he said and intended taking one later. Judge Shufeldt informed him that he ought to be better acquainted with the law which did not permit operating a car without a license and fined him $10 which he paid.

One Boy Arrested.

Harry Whitaker, arrested for driving without an operator's license, confessed that it was true and that he had none. He said he was 15 years old and when the judge learned of his age he remanded him to children's court for trial.

Had Illegal Headlight.

Those arrested for operating cars with illegal headlights were: Joseph Hoffman, Harry DuBois, Richard Schick, Leo Turner, David O'Connell, Charles Carner, Edward Kelly and Jacob Parnett. All were discharged with a warning to install the proper lens in their headlights.

Campaign to Continue.

It is understood that the campaign is to be continued in Kingston and vicinity until all automobile drivers are using proper precautions in having their lights in proper working order, and also having their cars equipped with proper lens.

Still Explodes, 5 Children Die

Five Children Are Burned to Death in Fire Following the Explosion of a Still—Mother and Two Other Children Saved.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 12.—In a fire following the explosion of a still at midnight, five children of Ignatz Sheddowski, of Plymouth, were burned to death as they lay asleep in one bed.

Bodies of the victims, burned to a crisp, were removed by firemen and police early today. The dead included Eleanor, 11; Helen, 10; Mary, 9; Anna, 7, and Agnes, 6.

Neighbors, hearing the explosion in the house, turned in an alarm which brought Plymouth's entire fire department to the scene. The frame structure was a soot-filled furnace when firemen reached it.

The father was found in the yard in a dazed condition.

Firemen learned that the family was still in the building, managed to reach Mrs. Sheddowski, one son and one daughter. Two others also escaped.

A still was found in the ruins later when an investigation was started by firemen.

Only a week ago, four local residents lost their lives in a similar tragedy.

General Strike a Complete Failure

States Secretary of General Federation of British Unions—Economic Ignorance and Brutally Careless Personal Egotism.

By William Archibald Appleton, Secretary of the General Federation of British Trades Unions.

Copyright, 1926, International News Service.

London, May 13.—The general strike is over. It has failed in all its objectives.

It has neither broken the government nor terrorized the people, nor helped the miners.

On the contrary it has damaged their present position and future prospects.

The only way to help the miners is to assist them to recover old markets and discover new ones. Their chances in this direction have been badly handicapped.

The strike has been an expression of economic ignorance and brutally careless personal egotism. It wasn't a sudden ebullition. It had been carefully prepared over all the months the coal subsidy had been running. Special schemes for disorganizing the public services were laid before members of some unions on the Sunday preceding the strike. These schemes took months of elaborate planning but they collapsed.

The effects of the general strike will continue for a long time. Among these effects may be attempts by the employers to enforce reductions in wages. There will be higher prices and higher taxation and increased danger of unemployment. Whatever may be the intentions of the government dealing with the miners and behind its attempts to relieve their situation the fact remains that owing to disturbances to trade many thousands of miners will be compelled to seek other occupations because the mines which cannot be economically worked will be closed.

"Everybody will suffer. Those who suffer least will be those who actually promoted the strike, and those who suffer most will be the poorest classes who will be forced by an increased cost of living to face the producers in meeting the increases in taxation."

"Many of the strikers will be sadly disappointed. They had been assured that victory was certain. In some cases they were told the strike could not last more than twenty-four hours. They have found that it has lasted more than a week. It is quite certain that many thousands will never get their jobs back and many employers will be tempted to promote the open shop."

"Trade unions hereafter may look for a serious decrease in membership because of this disinclination of men and women to allow themselves to be made the victims of unconstitutional action. If the government carries out its promises to those who have remained at work and to those who have assisted in the hour of need, and puts into effect threats made in regard to new legislation, the British Trade Union movement may be set back for many years."

"It is my opinion that this demonstration of the inefficiency of the general strike will suffice for more than one generation."

GERMANS RELY UPON PRESIDENT HINDENBURG

Berlin, May 13.—President Hindenburg stands out today as the one stable factor in the German political crisis.

The Luther cabinet is carrying on in the interim, but Herr Luther has asked the president to relieve him of his duties as soon as possible.

No single person stands out as the probable next premier. The names of Dr. Luther, Herr Stresemann, Herr Jarres and former Chancellor Marx have all been mentioned, but it is doubtful whether any of these could muster the necessary majority.

The situation is further confused by the public passions which have been aroused by the controversy over the restoration of the old imperial flag and the forthcoming plebiscite on the disposition of the former provinces.

President Hindenburg remains calm in the midst of this upsurge of political bucking and the nation looks to him to take steps to restore political quiet.

TWO MEN KILLED, ONE WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Knoxville, Tenn., May 12.—George Smiddy, police chief of Jellico, Tenn., Joe Collier, 28, are dead, and Policeman Joe S. Gaston, of Jellico, Ky., is seriously wounded today, as a result of a gun battle in the hounded coal town.

The battle started when the two policemen sought to arrest Collier, a fugitive wanted for the alleged attempted killing of his wife, and small daughter. Collier took refuge in a farther shop.

11 die before 11 a. m. and 11 be shot, opening fire on the policemen.

Pick Up Radio Message from Airship Norge

Broadcasting From Amundsen's Dirigible Norge Picked Up At Island of St. Paul—Great Preparations For Reception at Nome.

Cordova, Alaska, May 13.—The Naval Radio Station on the island of St. Paul in the Pribiloff group was thrilled early today when after hours of straining it picked up broadcasting from Rold Amundsen's Trans-Polar Dirigible, Norge.

The following distinct message was picked up:

"Airship Norge bound to Nome, Alaska, broadcasting. Please answer if anyone hears us."

The dirigible was using a wave length of 300 meters and has an installation of a tube transmitter.

The Norge's broadcasting was picked up again shortly after the first flash was received when the following was sent out: "Does anyone hear us?"

The dirigible then began calling RDG Station at Srednokolynsk.

Apparently some time afterward the Norge began calling Nome, Alaska. Evidently the station called made contact with the dirigible for St. Paul heard the Norge operator tell the former to "Go ahead."

The United States Naval Radio Station at St. Paul was unable to establish communication with the Norge but every effort is being made to receive everything the dirigible sends out.

Conditions at St. Paul are most excellent and that station reported a signal strength of six per cent at midnight.

Celebration at Nome.

Nome, Alaska, May 13.—The Trans-Polar Dirigible Norge was expected to reach Nome early this morning after a sensational flight from Spitzbergen.

The greatest excitement and enthusiasm prevails in this far northern outpost.

Anticipating his arrival, Captain Rold Amundsen wired from Spitzbergen to Ralph Lomen, Norwegian Vice Consul here, to have 100 men ready to handle ropes in units of ten men each.

There was no sleep in Nome last night, the entire population staying up to welcome the daring Amundsen and his co-explorers.

A field one mile north of the city is in readiness to receive the Norge. Cables have been strung entirely around this field to insure a safe landing.

The entire city of Nome and all surrounding posts are decorated in honor of the occasion.

Reception committees have been appointed and all arrangements have been completed for the biggest demonstration in the history of the Arctic.

A feature of the city's decorations is a huge hunting arch with the words "From Nome to Nome."

Over the flying field where Amundsen is expected to descend enormous letters spelling out the names "Norge" and "Amundsen" have been drawn.

FOUR ESCAPE WHEN CAR GOES OVER EMBANKMENT

Tyngsboro, Mass., May 13.—Two Lawrence young women and two young men in a speeding sedan swerved off the state road here early today, dropped down a twelve foot embankment and plunged into eight feet of water.

Smashing the glass with their fists and arms, the men crawled to the roof of the car and dragged their companions to safety.

The rescued girls were Miss Mildred A. Ginsburg, 19, of No. 55 Basswood street, Lawrence, and Miss Dora Shikawitz, 21, of No. 555 Howard street, Lawrence.

Their escorts were Charles Segal, of Haverhill, driver of the car, and Joseph Gordon, 29, of Haverhill.

NEW CABINET AT CHINA ASSUMES OFFICE.

Peking, May 13.—After three weeks in which China was entirely without any form of a central government, a new cabinet assumed office today.

The cabinet was headed by Wu Yen, Premier; Alfred Sze, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Wellington Koo, Minister of Finance.

The cabinet is made up wholly of adherents of General Wu-Pei-Fu, who with Marshal Chang-Tao-Lin captured the capture of Peking. Yen will perform the duties of Foreign Minister in addition to his own position. The return of Sze from Washington where he holds the post of Chinese Minister.

In Town and the Country

By H. IRVING KING

JOHN COPPERFIELD hated country life and had not much use for the country in general. But Celia Bucklin lived in the country—was a country girl born and bred—and that made a difference, even to John. He had often wished that it were otherwise, but he had to admit to himself with a sigh that she would not be happy except amid the woods and fields and that the roar of the elevated line would never make up to her for the calling of the whippoorwill, nor the rattle of the dumb-waiter for the babbling of the brook.

He went down to Brookville—where Celia lived—as often as he possibly could get away from business and attended there garden parties, picnics and other sylvan diversions with an assiduity only equalled by that of the mosquitoes in stinging him and the ants in getting into the ice cream. And he pretended to like it because "it would please Celia." The nights in the country were especially awful to him. The strange, weird, subdued noises got on his nerves; he longed to fly back to roaring Manhattan and get a good night's sleep.

He had met Celia when she was on a visit to some cousins of hers in the city, and had taken great pleasure in showing her about and expatiating upon the beauties of Manhattan; but all the time she had babbled of green fields and sylvan joys.

He proposed and was accepted—and he and Celia sat on the piazza of the lonely old house of her fathers and discussed the future. "We will build a little house over there on that hill," said he, "so that you will be near your people and your friends. It is quite a ride to and from the city daily; but I shall not mind it when I know that you are waiting to meet me when I come home."

"But John," said Celia doubtfully, "are you quite sure you would be content to live always in the country?"

"Oh, certainly," he replied; "anywhere would be paradise to me if you were there, dear."

"But do you like the country?" insisted Celia.

"Of course—immensely," he prevaricated.

Then he went on to picture their happy life to come in their quiet, country home—growing quite eloquent on the subject. Celia did not enthuse as he had expected her to over the prospect; she seemed, on the contrary, rather sad and pensive. He returned to the city the next morning, and the day following he received a letter from Celia. It was a curious letter; John could not make it out; something had happened; what was it? She hinted several times that perhaps their engagement had been a mistake—that they were not going to be as happy as they had thought they would. But in the next line would be a pledge of love and a willingness to be resigned to fate.

John pondered. Then he saw it all! It was that handsome young fruit-grower whose great orchards were contiguous to the estate of Celia's father. He had been hanging around Celia for years. Once, at a picnic, a country busybody had joked him up on his "cutting out Pete Pryor." Peter and Celia had been to school together as children; he was of the country, a scion of cities; just as Celia was. She had been captivated by his John's city manners and city clothes; but after the fatal "Yes" had been spoken had realized that it was Peter Pryor she loved, after all.

John slept quite as badly that night, in spite of the soothing sound of the neighboring elevated, as he had been accustomed to in the country with the ghostly calling of those infernal whippoorwills driving away slumber. Next morning he hung onto his accustomed strap, alighted at his accustomed elevated station and walked off wearily. Should he write Celia a letter telling her that she was free; or should he go down to Brookville and personally give back to her her truth and resign her to the bucolic fruit-grower?

At the entrance of the office building where John did business he encountered two ladies—the cousins of Celia whom she had been visiting when he first met her. "Why, how do you do, Mr. Copperfield," cried the elder of the two. "Aren't we early birds? You see, we are leaving for Bar Harbor today and had to see our lawyer before we started. How are you and Celia coming on? When are you going to be married? Oh, it will just be delightful for Celia to come to live in the city. She has always wanted to. She just hates country life; but has never been able to get away from it for more than a week or two at a time. Good-by. That lawyer must be in by this time."

That evening John arrived at Brookville. "It's all right, Celia, old girl," he cried, as he took her in his arms. "We'll forget that hangover on the hill. The five-room-and-bath flat handy on the elevated is all arranged. Come in town with me tomorrow and we'll pick out the furniture."

"Oh, John, you dear," she replied, "how did you know what I wanted? Won't we be happy?" And they were.

SAUGERTIES H-Y CLUB OFFICERS INDUCTED

Wednesday evening, at the Y. M. C. A. the officers of the Saugerties H-Y Club were inducted into the order of Kappa Phi Theta, by the Kingston H-Y Chapter of Kappa Phi Theta.

The work was done by the officers of the local chapter, assisted by Boys' Secretary Hall of the Association.

Kappa Phi Theta is a religious organization, based upon the Bible and planned to help older boys to better serve their chums and friends. After the induction service, short talks were given by General Secretary Porter, Mr. Morse, principal of the Saugerties High School, Donald Fellows, president of the Saugerties H-Y Club, and John Watts.

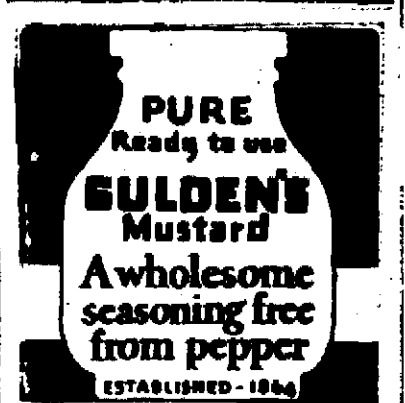

Following this a social hour and a swim by all in the natatorium of the Association, completed a pleasant and worthwhile evening.

Did You Hear Anything?

Two Savages stood in front of Rose-Gorman-Rose's store on North Front street this morning, arousing the suspicion of the clerks, who attacked them with a hammer and wrecking bar and found that they were in Kingston to do some Dirty Work. Arraigned before the public on an electric charge, they pleaded for a fair trial in the home. Bell was fixed at $160.00 each, but the judge discovered that the new electrical pump does the bailing. Keep out of hot water. The Savage Washer washes and dries without the hands touching the water. Savage Arnes Co. makes them—Rose-Gorman-Rose sells them—Advertisement.

CLAYTON ENTERTAINMENT

BY MISS VAN ETTEN'S CLUB.

"Clever" is the best word to describe the two one-act plays—"The Prisoner" and "The Burglar," given by the girls of Miss Jane Van ETTEN's Sunday school class of the Fair Street Reformed Church in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday evening. The two stage settings, one of a room filled with handsome furniture, the other a thoroughly up-to-date summer cottage room, were clever, too.

In "The Prisoner," an old-fashioned English comedy, the amusing confusion of the women were obtained as contributed to the acting of Miss Elizabeth West as Mrs. Warren; Mrs. James Wilson as Clara, the maid; Mrs. Ernest Lafferty as Mrs. Lafferty; Miss Mary Howard as Betty; Mrs. Warren's comely daughter; Mrs. Elizabeth Glendinning as Mrs. Ramsey and Miss Ella Jones as Mrs. Pichard.

In the story of "The Burglar" was one of today. The girls were a bit late at home. In it and kept the audience heartily laughing. Mrs. James Millard was Mabel Dover, engaged to Charlie; Miss Mary Howard was Frieda; Miss Ella Jones, Victoria; Mrs. Ruth Vredenburg, Mrs. Jack Barton (Peggy); Mrs. Ruth Glendinning, Edith Brent and the burglar, William Osterhout.

Pilsudski Now Controls Warsaw

Marshal Pilsudski Begins Selection of Members of His Cabinet—Exact Status of Polish Revolution in Doubt.

Warsaw, May 13.—Marshal Pilsudski is in complete control of Warsaw and it is understood that he intends to take over the government functions tonight.

The marshal has refused to negotiate with the Witos Government, which has retired to that section of the city which is under the protection of loyal government troops.

The number of Pilsudski troops is increasing hourly.

Pilsudski forces have now occupied the principal public buildings and military barracks.

Marshal Pilsudski has already begun the selection of members of his cabinet, so certain is he of the ultimate success of his coup.

In a radio message broadcast to Europe, stating his aims, the marshal declares that he will dissolve the Polish Parliament.

Exact Status in Doubt.

Berlin, May 12.—Communication between Berlin and Warsaw is interrupted and the exact status of the Polish revolution is in doubt.

The latest official advices from Warsaw declared that the government had the situation under control and that the Pilsudski forces were making no progress.

Other advices told of street fighting in the suburbs of Warsaw and declared that there had been many casualties.

One report states that the revolutionaries have taken over the presidential palace and other public buildings, while conflicting reports state that government troops are in possession of all strategic points.

Mutiny of a number of troops appears certain and it is reported here at both the Monarchists and the Pilsudski have come out in favor of the marshal Pilsudski as dictator.

Though one report declares that a recently named Premier Witos has resigned, other reports state that he has gathered the loyal army around him, has called for volunteers and is preparing to defend the capital.

The revolt appears to have its inception with charges of corruption in the parliament, with a possible monarchist movement in the background.

The streets of Warsaw have been plastered with placards reading: "We will not let Poland be plundered. Long live Commander-in-Chief Pilsudski."

PENNSYLVANIA WETS.

It is contended that since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment prohibition is not and can not be an issue in politics, and yet in Pennsylvania at the present time it is recognized that it is the only issue of any importance in the choice of a Republican candidate for Senator in the approaching Republican primary, with its three-cornered fight for the nomination by Pinchot, Pepper and Vare. Governor Pinchot is an extreme "dry," Vare an extreme "wet," and midway between them, Pepper, called a "straddler," stands for "law enforcement." William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate for Senator from Pennsylvania, who was President Wilson's Secretary of Agriculture, takes the middle position, like Pepper, of law enforcement. Thus the largely wet Pennsylvania Democrats are facing the question as to whether this time they should vote the Republican ticket. But, in as much as the nomination in the Republican primary in Pennsylvania is virtually equivalent to election, the issue is likely to be decided in the primary whether a Republican ticket is voted next fall by either wet or dry Democrats.

So largely are old party lines disregarded, under pressure of the movement to "liberalize" the Volstead act, if not altogether to throw off the yoke of prohibition, that prominent wet Democrats as well as Republicans are going into Pennsylvania to aid Vare, the wet Republican candidate for Senator, the speakers at the Vare rally in Philadelphia on May 7 including Senator Reed of Missouri and Representative John D. Douglas of Massachusetts Democrats. The broadcasted speeches at this Vare rally have been hailed as opening "a nation-wide effort for liberalization of the laws." Such developments leave little basis for the contention that prohibition is not and can not be an issue in American politics.

"WHY, MR. PRESIDENT?"

President Coolidge is asked some rather hard questions, but that of Miss Helen Maloney of Brooklyn calls for a relatively easy answer. Why is it, she asks to know, that for young men the Government provides a summer camp where they can have the time of their lives, while for young women no such vacation facilities are offered? "Is this a square deal for the girls, Mr. President?" asks Miss Maloney.

Obviously the Government's kindness to the young men is not as generous as it looks and is no means disinterested. It is but a part of the practical working out of the policy of military training and preparedness. In case of war every nation depends primarily on its young men, who are counted on to face the enemy's guns and die by the thousands. But do not young women serve in war time also, as nurses and in other capacities? The answer is of course affirmative, for all the people are called on to serve and sacrifice in one way or another. But all this is secondary, while the duty expected of the young men is primary. Even aggressive feminists can not ignore the fact that a country's young men are and must be its active defenders on the battle line, and that therefore their training under attractive conditions is imperatively demanded of a government purposing measures of preparedness. A simple and conclusive way of putting it is that from young women the Government can not get for its money the sort of war service it will demand and receive from the young men.

Has science really captured the secret of nature's marvel, the chameleon? We read that at the National Inventors' Exposition at Portland, Oregon, in June one of the exhibits will be a "multi-colored impress" which will print any color on any surface. It seems that a woman wearing a white dress may one day be seen in a store and, without removing her gown, have it changed to red for the afternoon and then to blue for the evening, and this transformation in color instantly. Or so the inventors claim—but of course some skepticism must be made for the optimism of inventors until their inventions are practically successful.

Henry Ford was one of three brothers and it is related that his father once confided to a Detroit banker: "Will and John are all right, but I am worried about Henry's future." Which was not the first time that an anxious father knew less about his son than he thought he did.

Gen. Aguinaldo, leader of the revolt against American authority a quarter of a century ago, calls for a better type of native politicians with a view to persuade America to "grant Philippine Independence." A way to provide America with cheaper rubber might be more persuasive.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

THE MORNING AFTER.

An expression that is not so common as formerly is "the morning after." The extreme sickness that followed unwise drinking of alcohol was not much different from what any of us can suffer if we indulge in too much food.

It is really an acid poisoning, an acidosis as it is called, and is just as much a sickness as any other ailment.

Just because our good sense tells us that the symptoms are simply due to overeating or unwise eating, should not blind us to the fact, that the condition while not dangerous, can be a serious matter to the body. There is loss of appetite, nausea and vomiting, tongue usually but not always coated, headache, dizziness, slight temperature, with a chilly feeling often present.

The patient is very depressed and generally miserable.

Usually the symptoms last for just a day or two, but sometimes the patient is prostrated for a week.

This is one place where the old fashioned method of cleansing the intestines is the best possible treatment.

In these days when instead of cleansing intestine, headache, and a soda solution for the stomach, the patient is going to remain "sick" for a few days.

In the days before this ailment was called ptomaine poisoning, the usual treatment was a strong purgative and sometimes a high injection into intestine, so that the offending material might be removed from the intestine at the earliest possible moment.

When the attack occurred within a few hours after eating, the stomach was washed out either by means of a stomach pump, or giving patient a tablespoonful of mustard in a cup of hot water which induced vomiting. Where a mistake is frequently made is in permitting the patient to indulge in his ordinary course of articles of food almost immediately after the attack. These irritate the tender tract of stomach and intestine, and the symptoms are renewed.

Immediately after the attack, and vomiting has ceased, then fruit juices, some well cooked cereal, and plenty of water should be given. Sometimes it is one single article of food that causes the trouble and the patient soon learns what this is, and avoids it.

This poisoning should not be treated too lightly, as frequent attacks lower the whole tone of the body. The irritation also might set up more serious trouble in stomach or first part of small intestine.

Mob Attempts to Destroy Offices of Land Company at Batavia, May 13, 1836.

By terms of its original charter, Massachusetts claimed that part of the territory of New York State which lies west of the Hudson River. Commissioners of both States met at Hartford, Conn., December 16, 1786, and made an amicable settlement.

It was agreed that Massachusetts should have pre-emptive right to two large tracts of land in the State of New York, the whole being about five million acres. Nearly all this domain bordered on Lake Erie, and included most of the beautiful Genesee country.

The tract ceded to Massachusetts was sold by that State to Oliver Phelps and Nathaniel Gorham for $1,000,000. These gentlemen soon afterwards extinguished the Indian title to a part of this territory, surveyed it into tracts, denominated ranges and townships, and sold large parcels to speculators and actual settlers.

In 1790 they sold nearly the whole of the residue of the survey to Robert Morris, of Philadelphia, for eight pence an acre.

Phelps and Gorham being unable to fulfill their contract in full with Massachusetts, compromised, and surrendered that portion of the land to which the Indian title was undisturbed, and this was purchased by Samuel Ogden for Mr. Morris, May 12, 1791.

Morris extinguished the Indian title, sold off several large tracts along the Genesee River, and mortgaged the residue, July 20, 1793, to William Wilk, of Amsterdam, and eleven associates, called the "Holland Land Company."

Immediately after the passing of the title, measures were taken to extinguish the Indian titles and to survey the tract. A council of the Seneca was held at Big Tree, now Genesee, in September, 1797, at which time the Indians ceded most of their lands to the whites.

The first agent of the Holland Land Company was Theophilus Cazenove, and in 1799 he was succeeded by Paul Busti, who held the chief management of affairs until 1824. In July, 1797, Joseph Ellicott was engaged as principal surveyor, and the following year ran the "Transit Line" from Pennsylvania to Lake Ontario.

In 1798 the first state roads were laid out from Coneywags, on Genesee River, to the mouth of Buffalo Creek, and to Lewiston, on Niagara River.

A few settlers located on the tract, but there was not much inducement after the opening of the Land Office in October, 1800. The first location was the "Transit Store House," present site of Stafford Village; then at "Pine Grove," the residence of Assinans, now Clarence Hollow, Erie County.

Upon the organization of Genesee County, in 1802, the office was transferred to Batavia, where it continued until the final closing up of the affairs of the company. Mr. Ellicott was then the agent and remained in that position until 1821. Under his management an immense tract of wilderness was converted into one of the finest agricultural regions in the world.

Mr. Ellicott was succeeded by Jacob S. Otto and at his death in 1827, he was succeeded by David E. Evans, who continued in office until 1837, when the business of the company was closed.

In 1835 the Holland Land Company sold all their remaining lands and all their interests to a new company, composed principally of Batavians, and difficulties at once arose between the new company and the settlers in various parts of the purchase, and mobs collected to destroy the land offices.

The cause of the disturbance was a rumor that the new company intended to exact a certain sum for the renewal or extension of every contract. This rumor became very obnoxious; the extra payment came to be known as the "Genesee Tax," and opposition to it brought on an open rupture.

The office at Mayville, Chautauque County, was broken open and books and papers seized and burned in the public highway. On May 12, 1836, a report reached Batavia that 700 armed men were on their way to burn the land office at that place.

Mr. Evans, the agent, at once fortified the office, and collected a force of men, well armed, to protect it. The militia were also called out. The mob entered the town but on learning of the preparations for their reception, and knowing the reckless character of Mr. Evans, they dispersed without offering any violence. Nearly sixty of the riot leaders were arrested, but the difficulties were afterward amicably adjusted, and the prosecutions were dropped.

The new company built mills, opened new roads, and sold their lands at fair prices and on liberal terms. The whole region was soon filled up with an industrious, intelligent and enterprising population.

Dependable Insurance

(What It Is—)

THE phrase, "Dependable Insurance" is in many instances overworked. Hundreds of times it means little, except a nice sounding slogan.

Dependable insurance can be defined as insurance that pays claims promptly and surely.

Protection that is placed in the strongest old line stock insurance companies.

(Companies that have successful business records extending over periods of from seventy-six to more than one hundred years.)

That is dependable insurance. Dependable, because none but stock companies can promise to pay and always keep that agreement.

Don't speculate with your insurance dollars.

There is no such thing as "bargain insurance."

We sell insurance that is dependable. Insurance that is there when you need it.

country, and afterwards, upon the death of Judge Theodore Westbrook, he was appointed by Governor David B. Hill to be a justice of the Supreme court; and was subsequently elected. Later he was elected as chief judge of the court of appeals. His decisions, of which so many are to be found in our books of law, show that he was an eminent and distinguished jurist.

The practice of the profession of the law to Judge Parker was not a business, but it was a profession. His ideals were of the very highest. He always followed the high ethics of the profession both in his practice and in his presiding and hearing of matters as a judge of this court.

His activities in life were not limited to the practice of the law. He early entered into the political controversies of the day. He became associated with the Democratic party and its leaders, and was especially prominent in the Presidential campaign of Samuel J. Tilden in 1876, and in the later campaign of Grover Cleveland. After the election of Grover Cleveland as President of the United States he refused high and distinguished office which the President then offered to him. As chairman of the State Democratic Committee he was largely instrumental in the election of David B. Hill as the governor of this state. And he then established a record as a political leader, and a man whose foresight and political acumen and judgment was unexampled by any other young man of his time.

Never will I forget the Democratic Presidential convention in St. Louis in 1904. Judge Parker received the nomination for the Presidency of the United States upon the Democratic ticket after an all-night session of the convention, when the glint of the rising sun streamed through the windows subduing the glare of the electric lights which had illuminated that vast hall; the cheering thousands, the crowds surging past the box where Mrs. Parker and her daughter were sitting, offering and showering them with congratulations, was a scene that can never be effaced from my memory.

A few hours later that memorable telegram filtered through the corridors of the hotels that Judge Parker would decline the nomination for the Presidency of the United States on the Democratic ticket unless it was clearly understood that he stood for gold standard of money in this country. That was an act of courage. It was an act of vigor. It was an act that settled for all time a question which had rent and riven the two great political parties of this nation for more than a generation. Judge Parker was vigorous in all that he did. Vigor was one of the chief characteristics of his life. I think the words of Emerson are especially fitting to his character.

"Yet vigor is contagious, and whatever makes us either to think or feel strongly, adds to our power and enlarges our field of action. We have a debt to every great heart, to every fine genius; to those who have put life and fortune in the cast of an act of justice; to those who have added new sciences; to those who have refined life by elegant pursuits."

And this one act of his, in ending for all time that momentous question of the standard of money of the United States of America, was, in my mind, the culmination of the acts and the life of Judge Parker. And from the numerous conversations that I have had with him regarding that subject, I believe that he also thought that it was the culmination of his highest ideals.

But, best of all, was his individual personality.

He loved nature. He was indefatigable in his work. And whenever he could leave his office in the great city of New York he would turn to his country home in Esopus; and many are the walks we have had together over his fields, and in which he has so often stated that those walks made him feel as though he was a distinct part of the great soul of nature.

He was a most lovable character. He loved his family, and his family loved him.

His friends were often at his table and in his house, and the latch-string was always on the outside of his door to his friends.

He had a wonderful physical personality. Tall of stature, broad of shoulders, erect in carriage, fine complexion, clear, expressive eye, he impressed all who met him and he was, indeed, a handsome man.

He had many friends. He was loyal to his friends. Loyalty was one of his great characteristics. He labored unceasingly for his friends, and they are numbered not only among those in the ordinary walks of life, but among the most distinguished men which this great land of ours has ever produced. And they, today, one and all, mourn his loss.

It was Ulster county that first gave him his honors, and he has retained those honors to the people in this county many fold. It is especially fitting that on this occasion a memorial should be spread upon the minutes of this court, where his voice was first heard in the practice of his profession, and I move, Your Honor, that a committee be appointed to present a suitable memorial to be spread upon the minutes of this court, and to take such Rotarians Told and Shown Recent Progress in Making of Electric Light Bulbs That Give More Light and Break Less Easily.

As a pinch hitter substituting for some high personage who was to have addressed the Rotary Club on "Man Power of America," but failed to develop power enough to keep the engagement, W. Davis Hawk proved so acceptable at the weekly luncheon on Wednesday that there was strong temptation to pass a vote of thanks to the expected speaker for not coming. Mr. Hawk talked about lamps and light, reviewing recent progress and developments in incandescent lights. New types give increased efficiency in the home and in factories and stores and use no more current.

Non-glare bulbs of ridged glass are now made for automobiles and better lights for buses are to be produced. Bulbs have been standardized, that now only 15 kinds are made, whereas three years ago there were 50 kinds. This makes it easier to select the right kind, more certain the dealer will have it in stock and reduces the cost. Not long ago automobile bulbs varied from 15 to 32 candlepower and there were many kinds. They are now uniformly 21 candlepower and of standardized pattern. Frosted bulbs now have the frosting inside where it does not weaken the bulb or collect dirt. New forms of filament reduce breakage. Bulbs that cost 20 per cent more than the old types give 40 per cent more light. Mr. Hawk illustrated his talk by showing the various kinds of bulbs.

other action as to the court may seem proper.

Judge Rosch's Tribute.

Supreme Court Justice Rosch said: It was with the deepest regret that the court learned of the passing of Honorable Alton E. Parker, a former justice of this court, and former chief judge of the court of appeals of this state.

Judge Parker was a man who brought to his profession and to his judicial positions, much.

He was a man who took pride in his profession, and from somewhat humble surroundings advanced himself, step by step, in his profession and judicial career until he held the highest judicial position in this great state of New York.

At the bar he held an equally high and distinguished place. And, in the affairs of men, he was the candidate of one of the great political parties for the office of President of the United States.

His life and career, indeed, was a wonderful one.

It is very proper that this court, over which at one time he presided, with marked dignity and ability, should make a proper record of his life and his passing. And it is the order of the court that there be designated from the bar of Ulster county, of which bar he always claimed to be a member, a committee, which committee shall prepare a memorial to be presented at this time, on the part of the court, to the people of the county, and the works of this distinguished citizen.

I designate as such committee John G. Van Dine, Howard Chapp, Philip Kline, James A. Betts, James Johnston.

This committee shall report to this court at such time as it may determine.

THE LOST DRESS

Perhaps you will think it strange that a dress can be lost.

Perhaps you will think it is impossible for a dress to be lost. Of course a dress is worn by a person who can walk and who can move about, but without being worn, a dress is quite useless.

That is, a dress cannot go off walking by itself or it can't sit straight up and the other hanging down.

It can't go running and it can't play tennis and it can't even dance—not by itself.

It hasn't any legs to do these things, nor head with which to plan what might be done in the way of amusement, nor arms with which to swing itself along.

In fact, a dress can't be many things without help. It can be pretty by itself, or it can be ugly by itself.

But it can't be worn even if it's pretty unless it is worn and shown off.

Nor can its ugliness be hidden if it is worn by some one who insists upon showing it, whether it is ugly or not.

Well, the speckled Easter-egg dress was not doing a single thing.

The speckled Easter-egg dress was not new this year, nor had it been new last Easter. In fact it was not a new dress at all. Yet it did not look as a last year dress will often look—a real last year's dress.

But it was a pretty dress and it was a pleasant dress, and it had kept its youthful look even though it was, for a dress, quite old.

No one thinks a person is old at the age of three or four, or even five. Six is not considered really very old and feeble.

But a dress that is six years old is not considered new. Nor is a dress that is five years old. Nor even four. Nor even three.

So that when a dress looks young at the age of three it is doing pretty well for itself.

This dress looked young. It was a very pretty dress. And its colors, somehow, looked like the colors in a speckled Easter egg. There was yellow in the dress, and red and brown—oh, it was such a pretty speckled dress. Maybe you cannot get an idea of it in this way, but if you think of the prettiest speckled Easter egg you ever saw, you will know that it was something like this dress.

Now, Melly did want to put that dress on, but of course as it was a summer dress, she did not actually need it in the winter.

She asked her mother a number of times if she would find the time to do it up for her, for it was mussy and not quite clean from the autumn before, and it had been put away with some of the old summer things to be fixed up all fresh when the spring came.

Her mother was only too willing to do it, but her mother was very busy, and this was not one of those things that had to be done. So it was put off. But when the warm weather was approaching, her mother said:

"Now I will fix up your speckled egg dress."

Well, she couldn't find it with the other old things of the previous summer, and she looked for it and looked for it.

And then, just when they couldn't imagine what had happened, they found the dress in a box with some of the old clothes that had been put away all freshly laundered and ready for summer. The speckled-egg dress had been ready all this time—in fact it had been ready since the autumn!

But it had kept quiet when the heat was on. After all, a lost dress can't say very much until it is found.

Names No Good

While a little girl from the city was visiting her country cousins the pet cat walked across the floor with five young kittens. The country children immediately began to select a name for each member of the new feline family. LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Since WGY hooked up with Rochester and Syracuse its programs have been greatly strengthened. The concert from the Eastman Theatre in Rochester last night was one example of this.

Did you get the Imperial Imps at WJZ and it so did you get that demonstration of the way the point from which reception is best reversed itself? This was between 8:20 and 8:30, at which time the reversal became settled for some time. Before that it hopped first one way and then the other a dozen times in less than that number of minutes.

And then came the grinding, crunching static that put an end to DX hopes and left only a few stations near and powerful enough to break through.

According to estimates, one-fifth of farm houses in United States have radios. Twenty-five per cent of farmers prefer music; 24 per cent make use of weather and market reports. Forty-one per cent of farm women prefer home-makers programs; 31 per cent musical programs; eight per cent, lectures, three per cent, church services; one per cent, garden and poultry talks. Ninety-five per cent of farmers consider their radio a utility as well as an amusement device, according to a recent survey, as radio brings them market reports 24 to 48 hours earlier than obtainable by other means.

Natty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE LAKE SUPERIOR MOCK DUCK.

In the early days of the logging industry the mock duck was so plentiful that Paul Bunyan, the noted woodsman, served them three times a day for his camp mess. The animals were cut up and cooked into a kind of stamagoulon, and philologists assert that the origin of the term "moss" came from the language used by the lumberjacks in speaking of this diet after three months of it. The mock duck can also mock anything, and at the sound of a gun will mock it so cleverly that the hunters take it for an echo. The above picture shows the mock duck mocking a mock turtle dove in a rather, phonic manner.

To construct a replica of a mock duck, you first secure a good-sized English walnut, and fashion on split saw beams for wings with chewing gum of sealing wax. The head is a single peanut, the feet are split lima beans, and the legs and neck are made of clover.

On Past Masters' Night, May 17, the Stone Ridge Grange expects to have some out of town members. Every Granger is urged to be present.

The summer movies in the Grange Hall were opened on Wednesday evening with a very interesting picture, "Madam Butterfly." Robert Howe expects to have an exceptional class of good pictures during the coming summer.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church held its monthly business meeting at the home of Miss Mark Hambrick on Thursday afternoon of this week. Plans were discussed for the annual fair to be held in August.

COWS GIVE EXTRA QUART SOOTHED BY PHONOGRAPH

Tennessee Man Makes Interesting Experiment With 100 Cows On His Dairy Farm.

Knoxville, Tenn.—A milk cow will give an additional quart of milk a day when "My Old Kentucky Home," reproduced from instrumental music, is played for her ears by a phonograph.

At any rate, J. O. Sterchi, president of a furniture concern which operates 24 retail and wholesale stores and seven furniture factories in seven Southern states, says he proved the statement by getting 25 gallons extra a day from the 100 cows on his dairy farm just outside Knoxville.

Mr. Sterchi asserts that he was convinced after four years of trial that cows must be contented, and that the soothing strains from a violin make them feel at home.

"Just now I am building a large pool which will be stocked with gold fish for my Jerseys to look into," he said. "The slow and graceful motions of the fish will make any cow lie down and chew her cud, and then I have ordered 50 pairs of canary birds for my barn. A cage, containing two birds, will be suspended between the stalls of every two cows, and the music of 100 canaries will perhaps give me another additional 24 quarts a day. In fact, I am confident it will."

Mr. Sterchi is erecting a 13-story building for his Knoxville store, which will be completed within the next year, and on the ground floor will be a fountain spouting fresh buttermilk from his farm. A sign will be placed, he said, reading something like this: "A Man Full for a Nickel," so that a person can drink all the milk he wants for 5 cents.

The 1,300-acre farm on the outskirts of Knoxville is the same one he left 85 years ago to work for $10 a month in a furniture store.

Gets Submarine Letter Mailed Nine Years Ago

A member of the New York Times staff has just received a letter marked "Submarine Mail," sent in 1917 from Germany. Evidently the U-boat turned back when United States declared war on Germany. Nine years later the letter was sent in the ordinary way by the original sender unopened, explaining that the document should become more and more valuable as the years pass.

First White-Collar Stowaway Hails Home

New York.—It was a handsome Scottish scarf that won Royal Pichen away from the security and comfort of land about two months ago, but all the woolens from Scotland couldn't coax him back to the waves again. Pichen, who is twenty-five, grew up in New Orleans as a bellhop and then a clerk in hotels. Working in New Orleans, he saw a sailor with the Scottish scarf that invited him away to sea. Working his way across on a freighter, he soon found himself broke in London. Selling his $65 overcoat for two shillings and a worn-out jacket, he hid under the bellies of a steamer.

He had four bananas and three rolls for his two shillings. These kept him alive for the two days before he was discovered. He turned his one suit of clothes inside out while he was hidden so that when he landed here he might be presentable.

He was presentable when he was matched yesterday, the first white-collar stowaway discovered. "Go to sea again? If I ever go to New Orleans, I'll do there. European liquor isn't what it's cracked up to be."

In the Kitchen with 6 Famous Cooks

FOUR DELICIOUS CAKES FROM FOUR CORNERS OF THE UNITED STATES

(Ed. Note: This is one of a special series of articles contributed by 6 Famous Cooks. Their recipes are "delicious." Cut them out and paste them in your cook book.)

Who ever heard of a family without at least one "cake-eating" member? It's pretty certain that such a household doesn't exist. Usually there are several folks clamoring for cake and more cake. It's the one food which seldom has "left-overs."

It's also one of the foods which can be made just as rich or just as plain as the cook wants to make it.

For the Chocolate Cake

Rich Devil's Food Cake with Laplander frosting—a cake which appeals especially to those who like chocolate. Miss Margaret Allen Hall, nutrition expert at the Battle Creek College of Home Economics, gives this as her favorite recipe:

1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup milk
4 eggs
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts
2 squares chocolate.

Cream the butter with one cup of sugar. Beat egg yolks, add the other cup sugar, beat until creamy. Combine the two mixtures, add baking powder with flour and add to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Add melted chocolate and nuts, and fold in egg whites. Bake in deep pan, or in layers. Cover with Laplander frosting.

Laplander Frosting

1 egg
1 cup sugar
2 squares chocolate cut fine
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons butter
4 teaspoon vanilla

Beat the egg, add milk, butter, sugar and chocolate. Cook slowly over flame, stirring constantly. When mixture comes to a boil, remove from fire, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread.

For the Children

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer, the Philadelphia cooking expert, has an excellent recipe for a port molasses cake. "Give the children as much as they want," says Mrs. Rorer. "It's wholesome and nourishing."

Here is Mrs. Rorer's recipe: Dissolve one teaspoonful of baking soda in two tablespoonfuls of warm water. Add one cupful of brown molasses, a quarter of a pound of melted butter, one cupful of boiling water, and one tablespoonful of ground ginger. Add three cupfuls of pastry flour and beat until smooth. Bake in a shallow pan on a spot rack in a medium oven for about 30 minutes.

This may be served with whipped cream as a delicious dessert.

Use Bananas, Too

Bananas favor this delicious cake recommended by Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn, Los Angeles cooking expert. The ingredients are:

1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup mashed bananas
4 tablespoons sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped walnut meats

Cream sugar and shortening, add the beaten eggs. Dissolve soda in sour milk and add. Stir in bananas, sugar, and salt together and add. Mix well, and add water. Flour, salt, soda, and baking powder. Bake in a shallow pan on a spot rack in a medium oven for about 30 minutes. See with banana whip.

Savannah Fruit Cake

Mrs. Belle DeGraf, San Francisco, home economics counselor, contributes her recipe for Savannah Fruit Cake.

1 egg
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk or water
1/2 cup melted shortening
1 teaspoon lemon

Put dry ingredients, except sugar, beat eggs until very light, add sugar gradually, beating with one hand. Then cream, add dry ingredients alternately with liquid, mixing well. Add flavoring and melted shortening. Pour batter in a shallow, well greased pan, cover top with peeled uncooked prunes, placing the fruit in even rows, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Bake in a moderate oven.

It's Worth It

Every housewife who can use an oil stove should devote five minutes to it each morning. Wipe the reservoir and wiping off the oil, the stove is perfect flame and so clean as ever.

Oil Cook Stoves and Ovens

WE have the Perfection Stove that the Six Famous Cooks recommended so enthusiastically. Let us show you why a Perfection in your kitchen means better cooking and greater convenience in doing it. Many styles and sizes.

ROSE-GORMAN-ROSE

Is cake baking really difficult?

"Not when you have the right stove," say six famous cooks.

There is no reason why cake-making should be less successful than any other cooking operation—when the cook can depend upon her stove.

THAT is the statement of six famous cooks who have just completed a practical cooking test of the Perfection Stove. All six agreed in praising the Perfection highly for its baking ability, as well as for its general performance.

"Speaking of cakes, half the making is in the baking," said Miss Rosa Michaelis, New Orleans, domestic science specialist.

Delicate Angel Food

"An even temperature must be maintained while an angel food and other cakes are baking," added Miss Margaret A. Hall, nutrition expert of the Battle Creek College of Home Economics. "When I baked cakes in the Perfection oven I used a standard, portable oven thermometer as a check. The flame did not creep or crawl. You can depend on the Perfection flame to remain as you set it."

"My orange cakes and devil's foods were delicious," commented Mrs. Kate B. Vaughn, Los Angeles, household economics director. "The air circulation in the Perfection oven seems perfect. All excess moisture was carried away."

"It's the 'live heat' of the Perfection Oven which brings such good results," said Mrs. Rorer, famous Philadelphia cook.

"The Perfection oven is so roomy that there is room for several cakes at a time," said Mrs. Belle DeGraf, San Francisco. "And, through the glass door of the oven you can see just how they are baking. No need to open the door and lose any heat."

Miss Lucy G. Allen, of the Boston School of Cookery, commented on the visible oil supply. "You can see," she remarked, "whether you have enough for your cooking. If not, it's easy to refill the Perfection reservoir without soiling your hands."

High Praise

These are just a few of Perfection's good baking points which the six expert cooks praised highly. You will find many others when you bake on a Perfection. It's the stove which proves cake-baking is not difficult.

Johnston Recalls Abbey's Poems

Former Kingstonian Calls Attention to Nature Poems of Kingston Poet in Connection With Arthur Day.

Charles E. Johnston of Ulster, formerly of this city, writes as follows to the Ulster Press:

I am very glad, indeed, that the Press is taking an active interest in reformation, or in the simpler words of the preceding generation, just plain "tree planting." In my early life, as boy and man, I lived at Kingston, N. Y. One of our neighbors was Henry Abbey, the poet, whose poems are more widely read and loved in England than America. The soul of the poet was in him. It slumbered while he was engaged in his daily business of selling flour and feed at wholesale, but flamed into being in his contact with friends, after the daily grind of the mill was over. He talked poems. Mr. Abbey was big, mental, physically and physically. There was a strain of Indian blood in the Abbey family inherited from Pocahontas, of early colonial fame. He was tall, slightly over six feet. Hair black and straight, black eyes, high cheek bones, straight and erect as a growing sapling and the stride of a man of the forest. It was a cold and stormy day, indeed, when he did not walk from his home to his place of business, about two and one-half miles and cover it in 30 minutes. Abbey's most beautiful poems were "On the Sea," a story of the great Indian chief, who created the Catskill Mountains. "Max in Kingston" and "Trees." And this poem, "Trees," might well be repeated at every tree planting the country over.

"What do we plant when we plant the tree?"

We plant the ship, which sails the sea.

We plant the mast to carry the sails.

We plant the planks to withstand the gales.

The keel, the keelson, the beam and knee.

We plant the ship, when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the house for you and me.

We plant the rafters, the singles, the floors.

We plant the studding, the lath, the doors.

The beams and siding, all parts that be.

We plant the house, when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

A thousand things that we daily see.

We plant the spire that out towers the crag.

We plant the staff for our country's flag.

We plant the shade from the hot sun free.

We plant all these when we plant the tree.

And in this tree-planting time, we must not forget the Pacific Coast poet, Joyce Kilmer, who made the supreme sacrifice on Flanders Field. His poem also was "Trees".

"I think that I shall never see

A poem lovely as a tree—

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed

Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;

A tree that looks at God all day

And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that, in summer rears

A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;

Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,

But only God can make a tree."

Kilmer was loved by the members of the Press Club of San Francisco, one of whom, Claude Westover, an editorial writer on the Examiner, gave me a copy of his poem, and Abbey was equally loved by the members of the Authors' Club in New York city. It was frequently my pleasure to be Abbey's guest at the meetings of the Authors' Club, where gathered the great literary men of the Atlantic Coast, and where I met Rosister Johnson, editor of the Century; Dictionary, John Burroughs, poet, bird man and nature student, and writer. And in return, Abbey was my guest at the meetings of the Holland Society of New York, where he met and enjoyed Theodore Roosevelt and many other men of Dutch descent—that strong, sturdy, reliable race, who laid the foundation of our republic and shaped its early government. The principles incorporated in our constitution were the same as had been in effect in the Netherlands for more than 100 years.

When the Dutch commenced reclaiming the Netherlands from the sea by building strong and immense dikes, there were no trees in their country. Now the whole country is blooming with fragrant flowers and beautiful and attractive with trees.

Cleveland Team Making the Grade

New York, May 13.—When a ball club can win with two-thirds of its natural punch hitting like an empty sleeve, it may be assumed that the rest of the outfit has more than a break in the luck and the right idea. This, in effect, was the sentiment expressed to the writer today by Tim Speaker, whose Cleveland Indians have confounded the intelligentsia by rushing to the American League pace and staying right with it.

This is the same club that was magnanimously rated above the Red Sox, largely because of the hitting of Speaker and Jamieson, among others. According to the latest available figures, Jamieson is hitting .265 while Speaker's bat has been silent like the dead.

Before, he feels he can be pardoned for regarding the present pace of the Indians as more or less of a permanent institution.

"Neither Jamie nor myself has delivered yet the boys are able to win," he said. "The reason I believe may be found in the fact that I have a genuinely improved ball club instead of slumping. It should be able to carry on consistently, for both Jamieson and I expect to hit many points better than we are doing now and the team, as a whole, is not the kind that is due for a flop."

"We are getting good pitching for the first time in several seasons and men like Uble, Shante and Smith are hardly in the experimental stage. If they are good now, they figure to be good through August and September. Young Levson has come through splendidly to round out a real staff of pitchers."

"An annual weakness, since the release of Wambegans, was second base. It is one of our strongest positions now. Spurgeon is a fine ball player and getting better all the time. Right field was another of my troubles but Summa seems to have made the grade at last."

"Joe Sewell, of course, is a great

First Road Game For All-Stars

Sunday the Kingston All Stars will play their first road game in Port Jervis. This will be the first of a three game series, and the local boys are going to try hard to grab the first contest. After trimming Saugerites two weeks ago the All Stars expect to have two straight after Sunday.

Cragan will twirl Sunday, while Fred Stoudt will work in the twilight game tonight. The rest of the All Stars' schedule is as follows: Sunday, May 16, Port Jervis; Sunday, May 23, Chatham; Sunday, May 30, and Monday, May 31, at Carbondale, Pa.; Saturday, June 5, Hudson River State Hospital; Sunday, June 6, Port Jervis.

Last Night's Fights. At Montreal: Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., light heavyweight, stopped Martin O'Grady in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Leo (Kid) Roy, Canadian featherweight champion, won from Spencer Gardner of New York, 10 rounds. At Cleveland: Babe Herman, New York, knocked out Charley Mantey, New Bedford, Mass., in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round go.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.: Sallor Larsen knocked out Harold Smith of Chicago, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten; bantamweights.

Los Angeles: Eddie Shea of Chicago, won a ten-round decision over "Oakland" Johnny Farr; featherweights.

shortstop and a great hitter. Burns, at first base, is hitting like he did in 1920, our championship year. In fact, the entire club is hitting well, in spite of the slow start by Jamie and myself. Last of all, the boys are hustling."

Speaker, as always, declined to offer any predictions as to where he thought his club or any other would finish. He merely said that the Indians' chances looked good and that he hoped for the best.

"Boston is the only Eastern club I have been able to get a real line on," he added. "In the west, the White Sox looked awfully good to us. The Tigers and Browns were going well enough when we met them but were not getting our quality of pitching. I think it was this edge that allowed us to win."

Tagging Major League Bases

The deadlock for first place in the American League was shattered when the Yanb's moved out Cleveland in the tenth, 6 to 5. Shucker helped win his own game by polling three hits.

Philadelphia, making records faster than Charlie Hoff and Nurni put together, beat the White Sox in the tenth, 4 to 3, and is the first team in the American League to win nine straight this season.

The Browns, now 30,000 feet below sea level in their search for a new route to China, lost to Walter Johnson and the Senators, 7 to 4. Washington jumped to second place.

Hal Wittke of the Red Sox proved that all rookies aren't lemons by beating Detroit, 4 to 2. The batting of Haney, Flagstead and Rigney, all former Tigers, won the game.

A double by Wheat and a triple by Herman in the ninth broke up a great pitching duel between McWeeny and Root, Brooklyn winning from Chicago, 2 to 0. McWeeny has held the opposition runless in nineteen consecutive innings.

Pittsburgh staged a Roman holiday in pounding four Philly pitchers for 17 hits. The score was 14 to 3 when the Pirates retired to let the Philis bury their dead.

Fearing they would all be sold down the river, the Glants woke up and beat St. Louis 2 to 1. All the runs scored were homers, made by Southworth, Meusel and Dell.

Donohue held the Braves to three hits as the Reds beat them 9 to 1.

MORGAN HILL. May 13.—At the recent annual school meeting held here, Charles Wieland was re-elected trustee and Arno Barthel, collector.

The school children observed Arbor Day by planting bulbs and flower seeds in the school garden and afterward built a fire on the grounds and toasted marshmallows.

Those who attended the all day meeting at West Hurley recently of the Home Bureau reported a most enjoyable and instructive session. The lesson was on clothing, colors, etc.

Preserving Pewter. Many persons who are acquiring now and then a few pieces of old pewter will find that it is wise to wash this ware in warm, soapy water after using it, then to dry it off with a little wheat bran and a soft cloth. If it is very dirty, a paste made of whitening and alcohol will clean the pewter if rubbed in well. Rub the pewter afterward with a soft polishing cloth.

U. & D. Blanked K. & M. Silk Team

Freddie Williams, pitching for the Ulster & Delaware Railroad team, started off in fine style in the Industrial Baseball League Wednesday evening, blanking the K. & M. Silk Mills to the tune of 6-0. He only allowed one hit.

The Railroaders scored three times in the first inning, which was enough to win the ball game. D. Hornbeck struck out to start the inning. Jack Long single to center and took second as K. Hornbeck was thrown out at first. Smedes hit a hot one down to third and J. Long tallied. Cause was safe when Bowers muffed his fly. Black hit to left and Smedes and Cause scored.

They scored two more in the third on hits by Cause and Black, and one in the fourth.

Mains was on the mound for the Silkmen and pitched good ball, but his support was lacking.

SAFE DEPOSIT EXPERIENCES

By Mr. S.

I have always kept my bonds and other valuable papers at home in a trunk. Last week I cut off two $25.00 coupons, but lost them on the way to the bank to have them cashed. I then decided to keep my bonds in a safe place where I could get the coupons cashed without danger of losing them after they were cut. So the next day I rented a safe deposit box for only $3.00 a year in the

and Commercial

New York, May 13.—A sensational turn-over of nearly 200,000 shares of Nash Motor common stock, more than one-third of the total capitalization of the company, was the outstanding feature of an irregular stock market today. It was assumed in Wall Street that the transaction was a formal transfer of the holdings of the late James J. Storrow, the largest stockholder and one of the founders of the company, but an executor of the estate denied that the stock was being liquidated and officials of the company ventured the opinion that the stock was being sold for the short account.

The market was unable to break away from its narrow and professional tone. The motor stocks, as a group, received the most attention from the bullish professionals, though General Motors was in demand at fractionally below the previous close, in anticipation of a favorable special dividend action by the directors after the close of the market today.

Bullish interests in the railroad and oil stocks gave the best of support to their favorite stocks, but efforts to bring in the outside traders in the former were unavailing. Union Oil of California advanced 3 points.

Marland reached its highest price in a month. Pan Handle continued to lead the low-priced oils.

Suit Against City on Trial

Saratoga Student Who was Injured When Auto Struck Covering of Water Main at Albany Avenue Bridge Asks Damages.

The action brought by Benjamin Gold of Saratoga Springs against the city of Kingston was taken up for trial before Judge Rosch and a jury in supreme court today.

Gold, who was a high school student at the time of the accident, was injured when the car in which he was riding struck the housing over the city water main on the Albany Avenue bridge which crosses the U. & D. Railroad tracks. He was thrown against the top of the car and injured. Plaintiff claims that the housing, maintained by the city was a nuisance and seeks to recover under that theory. The action was once before tried as a negligence action and was dismissed, and the present action has been substituted on a different theory of recovery.

At the time of the accident Gold with other students was returning to Saratoga Springs after a football game in a car operated by a teacher of the Saratoga school. As the car started down Albany Avenue toward the city limits a bus proceeding over Albany Avenue it is alleged crowded the car to the right of the road at the intersection of Albany Avenue and St. James street and caused it to strike the covering of the water main which is located at the curb on the bridge. The contention of the city is that the water main and the covering were properly there and that it had been there for some thirty years without having caused an accident and that it was due to a negligent operation of the car that the injury was sustained. The present action is being tried upon a different theory of recovery than the previous action which was dismissed by Judge Nichols.

Mr. Knapp of Knapp & Sherman and Frank W. Brooks appeared for the plaintiff and Corporation Counsel James Jenkins and William Kaercher appear for the city.

11 Indictments
By Grand Jury

Six Sealed Indictments Included in Grand Jury's Report to Supreme Court—Other Defendants Arraigned Before Judge Rosch.

The grand jury in attendance at the May term of Supreme court handed up its report at the opening of court today. Five open and six sealed indictments were handed up. The sealed indictments were transferred to county court for disposition. The fifth case, in which the defendant first entered a plea of guilty and later had a plea of not guilty entered, will be disposed of in Supreme court.

Silben Rose, 35 years old, indicted for grand larceny, second degree, alleged to have been committed on April 16, at the town of Rochester, entered a plea of guilty and later stated he had employed F. C. Merritt as counsel. Judge Rosch then caused the plea of guilty to be withdrawn and a plea of not guilty entered upon till Rose's attorney could appear in court and present the facts to the court.

Youths Charged With Robbery.

Joseph Tasco, 19 years old, and Angelo Armistodomi, 16 years old, both of New York city, each entered pleas of not guilty to the charge of robbery, first degree, alleged to have been committed in the town of Rochester. Similar pleas were entered in a second charge of burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed on April 30. Tasco first entered a plea of guilty to robbery and stated he was unable to employ counsel. On account of the seriousness of the charge Judge Rosch allowed him to later change his plea to not guilty and assigned counsel to the two youths. Francis T. Murray was assigned to Tasco and Chris J. Flanagan was assigned to Armistodomi.

Raid Results in Indictments.

The five men arrested in the raid on the Mont Claire Hotel at Stony Hollow last week and who have since been in jail were arraigned on a charge of keeping a house of ill-fame, keeping a disorderly house and maintaining a public nuisance. James Capreotti, Dominick Damico, Ralph and Alphonsus Gulda and George Hildron all entered pleas of not guilty to the charge. They were represented by John M. Cashin. Before bail is fixed the records of the men will be investigated.

James Capreotti was also arraigned on a charge of having a firearm without a license, he being an alien. A plea of not guilty was also entered on that charge. Judge Rosch suggested that the immigration authorities be notified of this case so the defendant might be deported to his native country, Italy.

The five men were arrested by Federal Agents McCay and Mulholland and State Troopers last Friday night following a raid on the Mont Claire Hotel in the town of Kingston near Stony Hollow. At that time the Federal authorities seized what they contended is gin, whiskey and alcohol. The defendants were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Connolly following the raid and held in $500 bail to appear in New York before the Federal court.

The members of the grand jury were excused with the thanks of the court after handing up the report.

City Hospital Nurses Graduate

Exercises Held in Kingston High School Wednesday Evening Large Attendance—Brigadier-General Hansome H. Gillette Delivered Address.

Fifteen students of the Nurses' Training School of the Kingston City Hospital completed their course of study and were presented with their diplomas as trained nurses at the graduating exercises held Wednesday evening in the Kingston High School Auditorium. The members of the graduating class were: Mabel Dudley, Elsie M. Bogart, Anna M. Sleight, Margaret J. Forman, B. Isabell Herdmann, Honoria V. Sanjalline, Edna T. Ennist, Agnes R. Finnelly, Eleanor E. Bovee, Florence A. Bogart, Norma B. Warren, Olive Bolce, Susanna Remus, Hilda Walker, Wilma Petroff.

After the invocation by the Rev. Charles B. Smith, pastor of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, Dr. George F. Chandler spoke briefly and outlined the coming hospital drive to raise $300,000 and the need of increased facilities at the city hospital. The address of the evening was delivered by Brigadier-General Hansome H. Gillette, who gave a most eloquent address.

Miss Jessie P. Allan, superintendent of the Nurses' Training School, gave an interesting report of the work accomplished.

A piano solo was rendered by Miss Evelyn Houghaling and the administration of the Florence Nightingale pledge to the graduates was made by Dr. A. A. Stern.

President James A. Betts presented the members of the class, and the response was made by Miss Mabel T. Dudley, the valedictorian of the class.

Judge Betts in presenting the diplomas to the class said: Ladies of the Graduating Class:

You have completed with credit to yourselves and honor to your instructors the prescribed course of study provided in this school.

It is no easy task that is set before you. Coming from the most part from the High School life, unaccustomed to nursing and caring for the sick, your courage and your endurance have often been severely tested. The man or woman who is ill or has had an operation in a hospital is for the most part quite different from the same person in the comforts of their own home with no disturbing illness. Sickness breeds impatience.

We are back now in that portion of the hospital which was fire proof and our citizens are hoping that soon the remainder of their Hospital will also be fire proof, so that one source of anxiety for the safety of those who are being treated there will be forever removed and that clanging fire bells will not alarm the relatives and friends of those who may be treated within its walls.

We congratulate you on your achievement.

so that in addition to caring for those entrusted to you with a constant lessening of your duties you not only have to put up with the impatience of the person treated, but often as well to conquer your own impatience at the seeming lack of appreciation from the person treated through the hardships that you are undergoing on his or her behalf. Your quiet persistence in well doing however has its reward as you see the health return to your patient.

You were this year put to a very severe test as to your courage and fealty to your Alma Mater and your charges, when the devastating fire with its accompanying smoke and water attacked the hospital. None of you for a moment flinched or even thought of flinching from your plain duty to care for those more or less helpless ones under your charge. You said by: You attended the persons whom you were caring for from their room, often through water and nearly blinded with smoke to the awaiting ambulances outside the hospital in the snow and slush that surrounded them. You still stand by. Most of them were carried to the Benedictine Hospital and you accompanied them to well equipped rooms so promptly and kindly furnished for their reception and for yours and you had no thought of leaving your patient until he or she was well cared for. Some went to our Nurses' Homes and some were taken to their own homes and wherever they were taken you stayed by them with no panic on your part, unafraid, no trepidation, no fears for your own comfort, but with kindly solicitude for the helpless persons in your care.

It is putting it very mildly to say that the Managers of the Hospital, the members of the Hospital and all our citizens were on that winter day very proud of the successful efforts put forth by the members of this class and the other nurses and employees and citizens of this city who so nobly and successfully contributed to the hasty removal of nearly sixty patients from our Hospital to places of safety and comfort. In those trying scenes, you bore yourselves in such a way as to merit the commendation of every one.

We are back now in that portion of the Hospital which was fire proof and our citizens are hoping that soon the remainder of their Hospital will also be fire proof, so that one source of anxiety for the safety of those who are being treated there will be forever removed and that clanging fire bells will not alarm the relatives and friends of those who may be treated within its walls.

We congratulate you on your achievement.

Search Hospitals For Young Ward

New York, May 13.—The possibility that Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire baker, who mysteriously disappeared one week ago, was the victim of amnesia, caused authorities today to begin a search of hospitals here and Baltimore.

Mrs. Beryl Ward, his wife, continued today to believe that her husband was kidnapped or "blain" by blackmailers. Mrs. Ward, in bed with a nervous breakdown, scoffed at the amnesia theory.

Plan Celebration Of Boys' Week

Under the direction of Tom Corby, the chairman of the Rotary Boys' Week Committee, the local committee organized with Dr. M. J. Michael as chairman and proceeded to make their plans for the celebration of this week in Kingston.

The committee voted that this year they would observe only three days, which would be as follows:

Sunday, May 23, The Boy and Church Day.

Monday, May 24, The Boy and the School Day.

Tuesday, May 25, The Boy and Citizenship Day; The Boy and Industry Day.

The committee felt that the boy and industry and the school should be combined on one day, and while the boys in the school systems were having their part in the program, the boys out in industry might also carry on with their work.

Dr. Michael appointed the following men, to select their own committees, and have charge of the various features of the week's program.

The Boy and the Church, Judge Joseph M. Fowler.

The Boy and the School, Dr. M. J. Michael.

The Boy and Industry; The Boy and Citizenship, Max Reben.

Publicity, Chester R. Hall.

Tentative plans have been discussed to have Kingston really take her part in this celebration of National Importance.

Boys' Week plans started with Rotary and has spread all over the globe where ever Rotary meets, helping to bring before the public the power there is in the youths of our cities, and help these youths to become better acquainted with their own possibilities as they face the tasks their fathers are passing on to them.

The following is the committee in charge of the program:

Artistry in Well Doing

A great deal of the joy of life consists in doing perfectly—or at least to the best of one's ability—everything he attempts to do. It is this conscientious completeness which turns work into art. The smallest thing well done becomes artistic.—William Matthews.

DAIRY THE DAIRY

GREEN FEEDS FOR DAIRY-COW RATION

Green rye and green cowpeas may be fed to dairy cows immediately after milking without unfavorably affecting either the flavor or odor of the milk. This fact was developed by a series of feeding experiments carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture to determine whether feeding green rye or green cowpeas affects the flavor and odor of milk, and to ascertain how these feeds may be fed and the milk handled so as to minimize any objectionable effects on the quality of the product.

The investigation relative to the feeding of green rye was conducted with ten Holstein and ten Jersey cows representative of their respective breeds, and giving milk relatively free from abnormal flavors and odors. The average weight of the Jersey cows was 978 pounds, and that of the Holsteins 1271 pounds. The stage of lactation varied from fresh cows to those nearing the end of their lactation period.

The cutting of the rye used in the experiments was begun when it was about 15 inches in height, before it had headed. In addition to the green rye, the cows were fed, in proportion to their milk production, varying quantities of a grain mixture containing two pounds each of hominy feed, bran, and oats, and one pound each of cottonseed meal and linseed meal. In addition to the grain mixture, the cows were fed as much alfalfa hay as they would readily consume, the average quantity of hay consumed daily per cow being 12.3 pounds.

The cows were separated into groups of five. One group received only the hay and grain ration and were known as checks. The other three groups received, respectively, in addition to the hay and grain ration, the following quantities of green rye:

15 pounds one hour before milking; 16 pounds one hour before milking; 16 pounds immediately after milking. This plan of feeding was followed for four consecutive days, but on the fifth day the rye was omitted from the ration. The cows were then interchanged in order to equalize any abnormal results caused by the milk of an individual animal, and the feeding of green rye was resumed.

Samples were taken from the milk of each cow at the time of milking, and cooled, but not aerated. The samples were examined for flavor and odor by experienced judges, who had no knowledge as to which cow produced a particular sample.

These exhaustive experiments disclosed the fact that as much as 30 pounds of green rye may be fed to dairy cows immediately after milking without producing noticeable effect on either the flavor or odor of the milk.

In similar feeding experiments with green cowpeas, 30 pounds of this feed was consumed by dairy cows immediately after milking without producing any pronounced objectionable flavor or odor in the milk. Green cowpeas tend to affect more unfavorably the flavor and odor of the milk than does green rye.

Cow's Individuality

Limits Amount of Feed

Wheat has about the same value as corn as a dairy feed, while oats has a value of 10 per cent less than corn pound for pound. The amount of feed which should be fed a cow depends in the first place upon individuality. Size of the animal, amount of milk produced and butter-fat content of the milk also bear important relationships to the amount of feed necessary. A grain mixture should be fed in the proportion of one pound to each three pounds of milk produced daily by the cow. If the cow produces more than five gallons of milk a day, however, feed at the rate of one pound of grain mixture to each four pounds of milk. Under most circumstances feed all the roughage she will eat up clean. Only if she tends to become overfat should the quantity of roughage be restricted. Feed all she will respond to in milk production. When she begins to put on flesh cut down the grain.

Bloody Milk Is Due to Ruptured Blood Vessel

When a cow gives bloody milk, it is due to a rupture of a small blood vessel in the udder. When a cow is fresh, it usually is due to the swelling in the udder, but when it occurs later in the lactation it usually is due to an injury to the udder. When it is due to an inflammation, the trouble is over as soon as the inflammation leaves the udder, but when it is caused by injury, the cause must first be removed before a cure can be effected. When the blood comes away in lumps, there is an infection in the quarter and the quarter will usually be lost.

When Bull Is Impotent

There is no particular age at which a bull becomes impotent. This fact is guaranteed much by the amount of service he is called upon to render and also upon the way he is fed. Pampered fat animals sometimes become impotent earlier than even young and some remain serviceable much longer. Not too full, plenty of exercise, and regulation of the service to one and not permitted too many cows at one time, many bulls will last much longer than this.

Culivies in Eggs

Eggs contain 600 culivies per pound, while milk contains 200 culivies per pound. One quart of milk is approximately two pounds, making the culivies value 40c. One pound of eggs equals one quart, but it is possible that eight eggs would weigh one pound, making eight eggs equal to one quart of milk in culivies value.
